

AFT National AFT Constituencies Leading Your Local Communicating with Members News & Publications Meetings & Conferences Directories

Monday, September 21
Welcome, Dalia Zabala (Logout)

AFT LeaderNet

My QuickLinks

News & Publications

- LeaderNet News
- Recent LeaderNet News
- Last Year of LeaderNet News
- Submit a Story Idea to LeaderNet
- Daily News Clips
- AFT Publications
- AFT E-mail Newsletters
- Back Issues of Inside AFT
- Receive LeaderNet E-mail Alerts
- Submit a Story Idea to LeaderNet

- About AFT LeaderNet
- Need Help? Contact Us
- Receive LeaderNet E-mail Alerts
- Report an Error
- LeaderNet Suggestion Box

Home > News & Publications > LeaderNet News

AFT Says Draft Standards Are a Solid First Step

The National Governors Association and the Council of Chief State School Officers released draft standards on Sept. 21 that define what students need to know and be able to do to succeed in college and the workplace.

The AFT supports their efforts; two groups of AFT members participated in a preliminary review of the draft standards. The organizations have invited comments from the public, teachers and educators.

Says AFT president Randi Weingarten: "There is a compelling need for common standards that are higher, fewer and clearer. We are pleased that many of the comments from teams of teachers were heard and are reflected in this draft.

"We expect to see even more teacher input during the comment period and in future efforts to develop standards to guide the work of K-12 teachers. We encourage math and language arts teachers from across the country to make suggestions throughout this process.

"The question is: Do these standards reflect what we expect our children to know and what they should be able to do upon graduation whether they enter the workforce or go on to college? We realize the answer is far from simple, but these draft standards are a solid first step.

"Much has been learned from past failed efforts to develop and implement common core standards. Key to the success of this initiative, in addition to developing assessments that are aligned to standards, are the implementation pieces that make standards real: curriculum, professional development, and other resources teachers and students need.

"We look forward to the next steps in the process and appreciate the hard work by teachers and others that went into the draft standards released today. This is yet another example of how education is improved when we all work together."

You can view the draft standards or make comments at the Common Core Standards Initiative Web site. [AFT press release]

September 21, 2009

Print Page

For help with this section, contact:
Dan Gursky, 202/879-4430

Search LeaderNet News

Got a great, related story--one that's happening in your state or local? Send a story idea to the AFT editorial department with a short description and contact information.

| |
|--|
| LeaderNet E-mail Alerts Would you like to receive e-mail notifications when similar stories appear on LeaderNet? Sign up for the LeaderNet E-mail Alert service. |
|--|